The beginning and the end of a research work are just like stepping on the highway of growth that begins with sowing the seeds of questions in the fertile land of a researcher's mind and ends with harvesting the ripe crops [of scientific products]. However the end of this process ushers in a new era of growth. This is, because the new results bring about greenery, refreshment and bliss. They also pave the way for asking new questions and collecting new cultivable seeds. Questions are link seeds that grow according to the needs of time and the abilities of the researchers, promoting cultures and civilizations.

Quick dissemination of information made available by means of new modern technologies, is link a fast blowing wind bringing with itself the seeds of new questions from far distances to a curious mind and providing diversity and refreshment to other civilizations.

Undoubtedly management and awareness play a crucial role in accelerating this process.

Given its universal mission, its place among seminaries and the necessity of diversity in manpower, Al-Mustafa International University deems it necessary to play an effective role in bringing about a suitable climate for research activities. Creating essential infrastructures, optimal management of existing facilities and supporting religious studies are some of the main tasks of the Research Department of Al-Mustafa International University.

By organizing volunteer scientific struggles and encouraging current motivations, we hope that we can improve religious studies through out the world.
